Gauloises cigarettes

The Gauloises brand cigarettes are produced in France by the group Altadis and appreciated internationally for being strong. They were originally short, wide, unfiltered. The dark snuff was prepared from Syria and Turkey, which gave him a strong and distinctive odor. Some people who do not smoke, compared the smell produced by these cigarettes as it is obtained by burning tar.

The brand has an extensive outreach and acceptance. The name is associated with various events. In France it is said that the name comes from mythology, in the form that resisted the hegemony Roman Gaul. In the era of world wars, smoking Gauloises was seen as a matter of patriotism. The brand was associated with smoking poilu (poilu is a term of the jargon used by the soldiers of the French infantry in the trenches) and resistance fighters during the Vichy regime. The brand is also associated with figures representing the world as artists and intellectuals. All these conditions make romantic Gauloises a popular brand.
