Pall Mall cigarettes

Pall Mall cigarettes were made in 1899 by the Butler&Butler Company. They aim to cater the upper class with the this new premium cigarette. The name was taken from a game played in the 17th century in which a player attempts to drive a wooden ball with a mallet down an alley with the use of as few strokes as he can. In 1960 the brand was number one brand of cigarettes in America. In the 1940s, Pall Mall had its own slogan written grammatically incorrectly, which touted it as the cigarette which "travels the smoke further", referencing their longer cigarettes, which was 85mm in length.

Selling of Pall Mall cigarettes on the Internet was very successful in many countries, particularly francophone countries such as France, Belgium, Switzerland, Canada.
